

New Band Greets Third Quota of City at Yaphank

304th Artillery Organization, 2 Days Old, Makes Maiden Appearance

CAMP UPTON, Long Island, Sept. 28.—The 2,933 men, the first contingent of New York's third quota, who arrived here today were honored by the maiden appearance of the 304th Field Artillery Band, which marched to the station to greet them. The band is two days old and comprises twenty pieces. Led by Sergeant Dolhine, who was transferred here from the regulars, and materially assisted by A. J. Hiltensmith, cornetist, late of the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra, the band played "Over There," "Pack Up Your Troubles," "Where Do We Go From Here?" etc.

At sunset, for the first time, when the men lined up in front of their barracks for retreat, the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner" floated over the city of pine boards and military endeavor.

Plead for Reinstatement

How deeply the army spirit has entered the hearts of the selected men was shown today when several of the 400 men who have been mustered out of service on account of physical defects, discharges, or other reasons, have given up military service caused them to desire their local boards in regard to their dependents. Usually the cases came to light through the dependents themselves. In one instance there came to the attention of the newspaper men a family man with a wife, three children and a crippled parent failed to file a claim and is now in service. In an effort to find a way of returning these men to their families, a test case has been started with the authorities at Washington by Major Haskell, division adjutant. If a method is discovered, a number of selected men whose duty is at home caring for their families will be discharged.

Major General J. Franklin Bell requested today that newspapermen publish an announcement that come here on Saturday and Sunday it will be necessary to set aside certain streets for visitors and to prescribe parking places.

Letters Addressed Wrongly

General Bell wished it to be clearly understood that his policy of keeping an open camp for the public will not be changed in the slightest, and that "everything will be done to afford as little discomfort as possible to the visitors."

Colonel E. E. Booth, chief of staff, asked the newspapermen to help relieve the congestion in mail deliveries here by making public the fact that most of the trouble is caused by incorrect

3,000 Drafted Men Leave for Yaphank

2,500 More Will Entrain To-day and To-morrow; Brooklyn Sends 961

New York City started 3,000 more of its men for France yesterday. They'll stop a while at Camp Upton, Yaphank, Long Island, and then, shoulder to shoulder with thousands of their comrades, take up the long trip to France and glory.

The men who left yesterday to join the National Army were the first contingent of New York's third quota to be called to the colors. A second contingent of 2,500 will leave to-day and to-morrow, making up the 5,500 called at this time.

There were tears as the men marched through the streets, either to the ferry at Thirty-fourth Street or to the Pennsylvania Station. But there were more cheers. Incidentally, not a little of the cheering came from the men who were going.

Only at Public School 75, in Norfolk Street, where the men were being mustered out, was there the slightest sign of disturbance, and that was largely due to the desire of the women relatives of some of the departing men to ride in the big motor bus which was carrying them to the ferry. It required the efforts of a large squad of policemen to eventually get the men off.

Brooklyn contributed 961 of the 3,000 to leave yesterday. This is the largest group to leave from the borough across the bridge at one time.

The men had been ordered to mobilize at the Carleton Avenue yards. As the men from one board after another marched up with banners bearing legends calculated to strike terror to the heart of the Kaiser they were greeted by cheering thousands along the tracks.

In all Brooklyn's contingent there seemed to be only one man who was unhappy at the prospect before him. He was Paul E. Dunham, an architect, thirty years old, who lives at 177 St. Mark's Avenue. He had been a member of the 33d Regiment for three years, and he was now being mustered out as a "conscientious objector" to war, based, he said, solely on Biblical reasons. He carried a Bible with him.

It would be hard to say just which Manhattan board started its men for France yesterday, but there are plenty to say that no one contingent left with a wilder display of enthusiasm than the men from Local Board 94, on Baxter Street, near Grand Street. Headed by a brass band and six drafted Chinese from the district, the men marched all the way to the ferry, stopping at Police Headquarters to serenade the Police Commissioner.

At the men reached Yaphank late in the afternoon.

Fourth Mobilization For National Army Postponed to Oct. 8

The date of the beginning of the fourth mobilization of men for the National Army has been postponed from October 3 to October 8, it was announced last night by Deputy Attorney General Roger B. Wood. The men constituting 25 per cent of the quota will go forward on the five days beginning with the 8th. The order of enlistment will be the same as announced, only five days later.

Of the first contingent of the second 20 per cent who left yesterday for Camp Upton, fifty-two failed to report on time. Some of these, found to have satisfactory excuses, were accounted for last night.

Mr. Wood announced that as a result of the publication of the names of delinquents who failed to respond last week twenty-five were accounted for, and the balance of the quota will be accounted for during the day. On the day of the other reported that he had failed to receive his red card and had been waiting anxiously for it.

It was found that three men reported missing, directly are at Camp Upton, having been sent there directly by the members of their local board who failed to notify the adjutant general's office. Twenty-three of the men were sent to camp yesterday, leaving only two men there last night.

It was stated at Mr. Wood's office yesterday that the men who have not been called for examination by the local boards are likely to be sent anyway as privates unless they comply with the regulations. The officers are required to get three copies of the order requiring them to report for duty from the office of the adjutant general of the United States Army and forward these to their local board.

White Officers of African Troops Use Burnt Cork as Camouflage

American Has Narrow Escape Because, Although His Face Was in Sympathy With His Black Followers, He Forgot to Paint His Legs

By Heywood Brown
(According to the Paris Herald and the New York Tribune)
(Copyright 1917, by The Tribune Syndicate)
AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 7.—Burnt cork and shoe polish are among the most important defensive items in the equipment of an English officer on the African front, according to an American captain who has just returned from service there.

The bulk of the fighting in the remote zones is done by negro troops led by white officers, and in the early days of the war the Germans had considerable success by concentrating their fire on the white men, who formed exceedingly obvious targets against the black background of their men.

Once the officers were gone the negro soldiers fell easy prey to demoralization. Gradually the British met the situation by putting the officers into the same uniform as the men and ordering them never to lead their forces into battle without first smearing their own faces with burnt cork.

"I felt like Frank Tinney in my first engagement," said the American, "and I wasn't quite sure whether the thing that made me shake was battle rage or stage fright."

In one particularly hot engagement he found himself a target for the concentrated fire of the enemy, in spite of the fact that his face was a perfect work of art in fast black. A fellow officer explained the situation to him: "You bally idiot," he exclaimed, "you've forgotten to paint your legs."

Even the officers wear abbreviated camouflage while fighting under the African sun, and makeup, therefore, is necessarily extensive.

A Black Man's Heroism

"I had the luck to get through," said the American, "and I never made that mistake again. In fact, I went the English one better in preparedness. Even during a hot campaign they would come in and wash up after every scrimmage. I kept ready. No more burnt cork for me. I did the job with shoe polish and put it on to stick. I was ready for a surprise attack any time during a month. All I had to do to get ready for battle was to take a dry rag and shine myself up a little."

The American was loud in his praises of the black troops. He thought them the superior of any soldiers he had seen in the past. He had seen them in the American war and almost the best of warfare in any climate.

"I never saw such courage as the King's African Rifles displayed under fire," he said. "These were men recruited out of savage tribes and given perhaps a year's training in soldiering. We had a very heavy scrimmage with the Germans one day, and an officer was killed. The man who crawled behind a bush, but the German who spotted a white man and kept peering away to finish him. One of our black soldiers, about thirty years old, crawled cautiously to the bush, keeping under cover, and then suddenly stood up and began to limp away. He succeeded in fooling the Germans into thinking he was the wounded officer and they left him alone. He was hit a dozen times. We got him to a field hospital, and he was still conscious."

"What made you do that?" the doctor asked him.

Forty Leap for Life At Camp Dix Blaze

(Special Correspondent)
CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Sept. 28.—Forty soldiers at this cantonment were forced to jump for their lives this morning, when fire destroyed a barracks containing recruits from Ulster and Orange counties, New York State. The blaze threatened an entire section of the camp. Only quick work by the military fire organization prevented loss of life and destruction of the wooden buildings.

Thirty-nine of the men were sleeping on the first floor and were unhurt by their leap through the windows. Corporal Charles Shortridge, who was asleep on the second floor, suffered a broken leg and other injuries by his jump to the ground. The fire started in the kitchen of the barracks, which was used for the storage of food. The flames started in bales of hay used for bedding which were stored in the hallway. A negro soldier, who was sleeping in the barracks, saw the fire and fired his rifle as an alarm. Three fire companies responded promptly, as did Companies I, K and L of the 15th Regiment, the negro troops of New York. Officers ordered the men sleeping in nearby barracks to dress hastily and march out. Everybody in camp was required to dress and await orders.

Major General Chase W. Kennedy, commander at Camp Dix, to-day inspected the burned barracks and ordered an investigation. He made no comment, but the report has gained circulation here that the blaze was incendiary.

Flier, Hit by Cyclist, Dies

CAMP MILLS, L. I., Sept. 28.—Earl Brown, a private in the 23d Aerial Squadron, was found dying early this morning in a ditch beside Old Country Road. While walking from Mineola to Rockville Centre, he was hit by a motorcycle. The motorcyclist escaped. Brown died in the post hospital. He was twenty-three years old and an only son, and came from Salt Lake City, Utah, leaving college to enlist.

Hikes took the place of drills to-day for the Rainbow Division, owing to the sloppy condition of the parade grounds. A hundred and twenty men arrived from Alabama to fill vacancies in the regiment from that state caused by death and disqualification.

Navy for War, Not Culture

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Charles J. Bonaparte, Secretary of the Navy under President Roosevelt, discussed "The Fighting Functions of the United States Navy" in an article for "Sea Power," official organ of the Navy League. He says:

"No man is a friend to the navy who tries to make it forget that it is first and last and all the time a fighting machine; that its true business is not to spread enlightenment or to promote

2 More New York Regiments Reach Camp Wadsworth

First Infantry and 3d Artillery Encounter Quagmire at Spartanburg

CAMP WADSWORTH, S. C., Sept. 28.—In a downpour of rain, which for the last twenty-four hours has been making a red quagmire out of the country-side, two New York State regiments arrived here to-day. The first to detain was the 1st Infantry, under command of Colonel James S. Boyer. This was closely followed by the 3d Field Artillery, formerly the 65th Infantry, of Buffalo.

The artillery unit received its first taste of war conditions when it sought to take its guns over the red clay roads to camp. The guns soon settled to their hubs, and the artillerymen and mules were called on to perform near miracles to keep things moving.

71st May Arrive Monday

The arrival of over 6,000 troops within the last four days has gone a long way toward filling up the great stretches of field and wood that lie within the confines of the camp. Camp sites are ready for the reception of the 71st and 23d regiments, of New York, and the 74th, of Buffalo. These regiments are expected here next Monday.

The military authorities have inaugurated a crusade against the manufacture and dispensers of "moonshine" whiskey to the soldiers. For several days complaints have reached camp that liquor of the "moonshine" brand was being sold to the boys. Not only is the liquor of a variety that should be marked with a skull-and-crossbones label, but it is being sold at champagne prices.

This whiskey is made in stills hidden away in the mountains, and is shipped into Spartanburg in bags of cotton. It never retails cheaper than $4 a pint. A pint contains enough power and uprightness to run a motor truck a mile up a steep mountain, and is a strange appeal for the city boys, whose education in these matters has been largely confined to the movies and dime novels dealing with feuds.

The authorities are determined to put a stop to the traffic, and already several negroes have been arrested and will be brought into the Federal court to explain the connection with the moonshine trade.

Although the New York boys are working hard in the hope that they will reach France very soon, the indications are that they will not leave Camp Wadsworth for some time. The eagerness to get abroad was given a setback to-day with the arrival of a big supply of stoves for use in the tents.

Seventh Throws Bombs

The 7th Regiment has begun a course in hand grenade work, and in lieu of the real article the boys are fitted with bombs made from milk cans. These, however, are serviceable in teaching them the proper way to hurl the missiles. The boys are also being put through strenuous trench work and taught how to follow behind barrage fire into the enemy's trenches.

Inoculation for paratyphoid is the next treat in store for the soldier boys. Before coming to camp they were inoculated against all manner of diseases, but as soon as the weather permits they will receive their finishing inoculation in the paratyphoid form. One of the most remarkable features of the camp is the few cases of sickness. The healthy outdoor life is agreeing with
